A STRANGE CREATURE

I heard about a fellow who saw a small looking creature as he was walking along a country road. Supposing that this varmint should be destroyed, he picked up a stick and struck it across the back. Immediately it doubled in size. The man grew excited and began to violently strike the little beast. The more he beat it, the larger it grew. Finally, he threw down his stick and got a club. Still he was unable to destroy it. The more he thrashed it, the more it grew, until it filled the whole road and he had no way to pass.

Exhausted, he drew back to get his breath and to his surprise, when he stopped beating it, it began to get smaller. Soon it had shrunk until it was smaller than when he first saw it. Then it crept whimpering into the brush along the side of the road and vanished. The Creature's name? RUMOR!

" I Don't Do Broken Bones "

We live in an age of specialists, and their presence complicates life. Who has not heard of the maid who proudly proclaims, "I don't do windows." No longer can you just go to the doctor; you must find one who treats exactly what ails you. There are doctors who treat feet, those who work on the head, those who work on the nerves, and doctors for almost every part of the body. Believe it or not, such specialization has entered the realm of "faith healers." Lewis Grizzard related an experience at one of the "healing" meetings he attended.

It seems that one of the faith healers (Ray Dodd Hembree) had come to his home town, and a school teacher, Miss Inez Pickett, came to him with a kidney disorder. Following his prayer, she began to jump around the platform, rejoicing over her "cure." She became so excited that she fell off the platform and broke her leg. When someone suggested that an ambulance be called, another remarked, "No need for that, just get Brother Ray Dodd to heal her." When they turned to him, his reply was, "I don't do broken bones, just vital organs." What a golden opportunity missed! One broken bone mended in the sight of the audience could be worth thousands of unseen kidney-ailment cures.

What a contrast between modern "faith healers" and those of the first century. "...All they that had any sick with divers diseases brought them unto Him; and he laid His hands on every one of them, and healed them!" (Luke 4:40). Why can't men see such differences? Will they ever learn the difference between the counterfeit and the genuine?
